Law Society unveils client care helpline package

The Law Society and Legal Services Complaints Commissioner yesterday unveiled a package of client care measures to help solicitors, including a £100,000 'best practice' consultancy service and a dedicated helpline initiative as an important step toward helping practitioners deal with what he expects to be a 'radically different' complaints-handling regime...

Is being mentally ill tantamount to a criminal offence in Britain?

Gazette reporter Jonathan Rayner writes about the journey his son and he have taken through an increasingly dysfunctional system. My son is out of prison now. Patrick (not his real name) has a mental illness, which seems to be equivalent to an imprisonable offence in this country. How else can one explain the statistic,...
